The Great British Summer

July is the month when the British summer traditionally arrives. At least, that is what we tell ourselves. By the time you read this, some of us will have already unpacked the barbecue, bought new garden furniture, and confidently declared that "this year is going to be different." Naturally, this will have been followed by a frantic search for umbrellas, waterproof coats, and somewhere to shelter the sausages.

There is something wonderfully optimistic about July. The gardens are in full bloom, the evenings seem to stretch on forever, and village life feels just a little more relaxed. Children look forward to the summer holidays, cricket appears on village greens, and conversations often begin with an analysis of the weather that would impress professional meteorologists.

Hope is a curious thing. We keep hoping for sunshine even after a week of rain. We plant seeds without any guarantee they will grow. We make plans for picnics despite knowing full well that the heavens may open at any moment.

Perhaps that is why Jesus so often used images from nature when speaking about faith. He talked about seeds, vineyards, harvests, birds, and flowers. He understood that God's creation teaches us something important: growth often happens quietly, patiently, and unseen.

Most gardens do not burst into bloom overnight. Beneath the surface, roots are developing long before we see the flowers. The same can be true in our lives. We sometimes expect dramatic changes, yet God is often at work in the ordinary moments—through small acts of kindness, quiet prayers, faithful friendships, and everyday service.

In a world that seems increasingly noisy and hurried, July offers us an invitation to slow down. To sit in the garden. To notice a sunset. To share a cup of tea with a neighbour. To enjoy the company of family and friends. These simple moments can become reminders of God's presence among us.

The Appleby Group of Churches continues to be blessed by the many people who quietly contribute to the life of our communities. Whether arranging flowers, mowing churchyards, organising events, welcoming visitors, or simply offering a smile and a kind word, these acts of service help our churches remain places of warmth and hope.

So whatever the weather this July—whether we enjoy glorious sunshine or experience all four seasons in a single afternoon—may we remember that our hope ultimately rests not in the forecast but in God's faithfulness. And if you do manage a successful barbecue without a single shower of rain, please let the rest of us know your secret.

With every blessing,

Revd. Rick Tett,

The Appleby Group of Churches

Country Church in Summer

Our lovely Open Flower Weekend turned out to be a great success with donations & raffle reaching £820. Thank you to all who attended and gave so generously. The weather wasn't really all that good but even so the displays were beautiful and the cakes delicious. Thanks must go to Rosemary Brown who organised this event and worked so hard and to all the flower arrangers, cake makers, and all who helped in any way. It was heart warming that help, displays and contributions came from across all villages in our parish - a real joint effort. Thank you all.
