Thought for November

November is a rather interesting month; the clocks have gone back, the evenings are drawing in, the leaves are falling, and many of us are beginning to wonder whether summer was just a rumour! The garden is looking a little untidy, the heating is working overtime, and getting out of bed on a cold, dark morning requires a degree of Christian faith all of its own. But November is more than just a month of cold weather and dark evenings, it is a month that invites us to pause, to remember, and to reflect on what really matters.

At the beginning of the month, we celebrate All Saints Day and remember All Souls Day, we give thanks for those who have gone before us: family members, friends, and those whose faith has helped to shape our own. In our Woodfield Team of churches, many of us will have familiar faces in mind as we remember those who have sat beside us in the pews, sang hymns, made the tea, organised the flowers, or quietly got on with the work of the church without ever asking for recognition. We miss them, but we also give thanks for them, their lives remind us that faith is not simply something we inherit; it is something we pass on. And of course, November brings Remembrance Sunday too. We remember those who gave their lives in war and those who continue to serve and protect others, our son being one of them. We pray for peace in our troubled world, remembering that the Christian calling is not merely to remember the cost of conflict, but to work on reconciliation, kindness and peace in our communities.

Jesus said, "blessed are the peacemakers, for they will be called children of God", that challenge begins close to home. Sometimes peace-making means helping a neighbour, forgiving an old disagreement, or resisting the temptation to have the last word. Some of us might find that last one the hardest.

November can sometimes feel a little gloomy, so visiting someone who is lonely, making a phone call to a friend, giving a warm welcome to someone coming into church, a prayer for someone in difficulty, or a simple act of generosity can bring light into another person's darkness.

Across the Woodfield Team, our churches may differ in size, history and character, but we share one calling: to make the love of Jesus known in the communities we serve.

As we move through November, let us remember with gratitude, pray for peace, care for one another, and look for small ways in which to bring God's light into our villages and communities.

So perhaps November is not simply a month to endure until Christmas arrives, perhaps it is an opportunity to discover that God's presence is just as real in the falling leaves, the quiet fields and the dark evenings as it is in the sunshine of summer.

every blessing for this month of November,

Rev'd Rick Tett
